

Criteria 5.3.2

Institutional Students Representation and Engagement in Committees; Student Council

The students of Megha Institute of Engineering and Technology for Women are not only reputed to be among the best in academics, but they are also efficient in delegation of work and leading various groups and committees in the college.

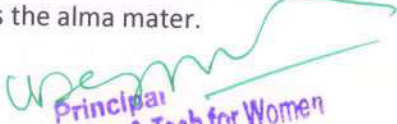

- The students of Megha Institute have a committee for creating clubs for various disciplines; one such discipline is the development of soft skills, language skills, life skills (yoga, health, hygiene). The students show their leadership skills by creating clubs for yoga, health, and hygiene by making the fellow students aware of the ignorance prevalent in the society and how these primitive practices cause harm to the individual and hinder the developmental process of the community as a whole.
- These clubs reach out to the people directly by visiting people from the rural areas and conducting short classes from time to time explaining one topic at a time. This way, the people of a particular village get the time to ponder over what has been said and taught and have their queries clarified, making it easier for them to practise what has been taught.
- Good communication is one of the most important weapons required in the society or the market today. It is very important for everybody to have good communication to have an edge over the others in the competition. To this end, the students form groups to develop their communication in all the common languages by conducting and inviting eminent speakers, writers, and teachers to speak to the students from time to time.
- Good etiquette is an important part of communication and evolution. With this in view, the students of this committee invite speakers to speak on the importance of etiquettes and also train the students on good etiquettes and practices that go a long way in the development of an individual.
- As Megha Institute is an all-women institution, the students of the college emphasize on women's empowerment, development, and above all safety. To this end, the students of the Redressal Committee take up the responsibility of creating awareness about the various grievances and the resolving mechanisms to address them. This helps the students to be more comfortable and confident to study without any feeling of insecurity or fear.
- There is no replacement for the camaraderie developed between the senior and junior students and the most important camaraderie is between the students and the Alumni. This friendship helps the students prepare to face the challenges that they may face on completion of their courses. The alumni help the final year students in choosing from among the various options before them, as the alumni are aware of the strengths and weaknesses of their younger friends. The alumni also take up the responsibility of grooming and fine-tuning the juniors according to the job requirements and refer the juniors to the organizations they work for. The alumni are thus the alma mater.
