Description of the Program:

World AIDS Day is observed on the 1st of December every year since 1988, dedicated to raising awareness about the condition called acquired immunodeficiency syndrome caused by the virus called human immunodeficiency virus or HIV, and paying respect to those who have died of this illness. Today, scientific advances have been made in HIV treatment; there are laws to protect people living with HIV and we understand so much more about the condition. World AIDS Day is important because it reminds the public and government that HIV has not gone away – there is still a vital need to raise money, increase awareness, fight prejudice and improve education.

This World AIDS Day, UNAIDS is highlighting the urgent need to end the inequalities that drive AIDS and other pandemics around the world.

Without bold action against inequalities, the world risks missing the targets to end AIDS by 2030, as well as a prolonged COVID-19 pandemic and a spiralling social and economic crisis.

Forty years since the first AIDS cases were reported, HIV still threatens the world. Today, the world is off track from delivering on the shared commitment to end AIDS by 2030 not because of a lack of knowledge or tools to beat AIDS, but because of structural inequalities that obstruct proven solutions to HIV prevention and treatment.

Economic, social, cultural and legal inequalities must be ended as a matter of urgency if we are to end AIDS by 2030.

Although there is a perception that a time of crisis is not the right time to prioritize tackling the underlying social injustices, it is clear that without doing so the crisis cannot be overcome.

Consumer Protection Act provides Consumer Rights to prevent consumers from fraud or specified unfair practices. These rights ensure that consumers can make better choices in the marketplace and get help with complaints. A consumer is the one who assumes to be treated like a King as they bring business to the seller. Previously “consumer was asked to beware” but these days fingers have been pointed to seller “let seller be beware” as due to policies introduced, government laws, consumer protection, NGO and the increased competition in the market.

In order to bring wide awareness on the Consumer Rights to the student’s community Quiz event was organized by the MIETW. The event covered with various physical talks from the Principal, HODs, and senior faculty members sharing their thoughts on the consumer’s rights. Students also showed their thoughts in this occasion and portrayed their talent through sketches in this event. Quiz conducted consisted of basic information questions and rights involved in them. Students of various groups participated in the event and the winners of the Quiz were awarded with prizes on the occasion.
